

The Noble Architect Foundation

121 B Pleasant Street SW
Vienna, Virginia 22180
P: 703.242.4401
F: 703.242.4403
Bahram@thenoblearchitect.com

Conversations with My Daughter “Dad, I want another daddy!”

Friday May 12th, 2006

Dad: Finish you breakfast.

T: No thank you.

Dad: Finish your breakfast honey!

T: I'm full dad.

Dad: Finish you breakfast and I'll let you pick your birthday gift.

T: Anything I want?

Dad: You can ask for anything within reason.

T: Like what?

Dad: First you eat your omelet. I'm going to cut this big piece of omelet to pieces and you shall eat 5 pieces of them.

T: FIVE PIECES?

Dad: Yes, five pieces.

T: How about two pieces?

Dad: How about six pieces?

T: How about four pieces dad?

Dad: Six pieces, and that's it. Eat these six pieces and you get to pick your birthday gift.

T: Can I pick a toy?

Dad: No toys. Begin eating.

T: Actually, I don't want any toys.

Dad: Good.

T: Look dad five more.

Dad: Let me know when you're done.

T: I'm full dad.

Dad: EAT!

T: Okay, Okay. I'm almost done.

Dad: Good. Then, you get to pick a gift.

T: I know what I want.

Dad: Okay.

T: I want another daddy.

Dad: Another daddy?

T: Yes. I want another Bahram.

Dad: What's wrong with this one?

T: Nothing dad. I want one more of you.

Dad: You do? What for?

T: So he can spend time with me.

Dad: I do spend time with you. Do I not?

T: If I have two of you then you spend more time with me.
